

My day at Mchente was one of the best days of my life. When I walked in the door I thought that I had made a bad decision about coming here, but that changed when I met Lynn. She made me realise that it was great and it was a day that will be filled with excitement.

The team taught me a lot and one of the things they taught me or Sandle taught me is that you can not choose a career because you are running away from a subject, example you must not choose law because you are running away from maths, but you must choose a career according to your personality and interests.

Meeting Dr. Mills Soko made me see that if you are determined and believe in something, there is nothing you can't do. Most of the staff is still young but they have already made something of their lives which was very motivating for me.

The thing which excited me the most was the survey which we did with Andre. I also enjoyed the conversations we had with Lwazi & Justin. We talked about everything from music to soccer, to the career paths we want to take.

Not forgetting Diane my new friend. She knows how to make a person feel welcome and she's always smiling and her positive attitude rubs off on you. She is an asset to the company if I should say so myself.

The Mthente team is not just a group of colleagues but a family. When I go out to work one day I want to be part of ~~an~~ a team like that, where I'm not just a colleague but a family member.

Thanks to the Mthente team for a day filled with excitement and I learnt a lot. Thank you once again and I promise to keep in touch.

Yours sincerely
